

What if science and spirituality are not opposing truths, but reflections of the same hidden order?

In this ambitious and thought-provoking pentalogy, Ziad A. W. Khalifeh explores a unifying vision of reality grounded in one central principle: equilibrium.

Across five interconnected works, the reader is invited on a journey through physics, metaphysics, consciousness, ethics, and theology—where the boundaries between disciplines dissolve into a deeper coherence.

From The Masks of Delusion, which challenges the illusions shaping modern thought, to The Fixed and the Variable, where form and function are re-examined through the lens of dynamic balance; from The Thoughton, proposing a field-based ontology of consciousness, to a profound Panentheistic Qur'anic Exploration of eternity and creation; and finally, to A Conversation With My Digital Friends that questions the future of mind and meaning — this collection offers a bold synthesis of ideas rarely brought together in a single work.

At its heart lies a simple yet powerful insight:

Reality is not conflict, but balance misunderstood.

This is not merely a set of books—
it is an invitation to rethink existence itself.
